QUEEN DOWAGER KAPIOLANI.

Slowly but steadily the leading figures in the Royalty of Hawaii are passing to the great unknown from which none return. The progress of events and international manipulation have forced them from the stage of political action and the grim reaper calls the former leaders, loved by the people, to their last account. But neither political events nor death can strike from the minds of the Hawaiian race the love and reverence for these royal personages.

The death of the Queen Dowager does not come to the community as a surprise. She had nearly completed the years of allotted life and death came as a release from suffering which had been borne with patient courage.

Kapiolani was one of the strong characters of the Hawaiian race, who merited the love and respect of her subjects, a love that was not lost when she retired to private life. That she was not without strong enemies in political life was the best evidence of a force and dignity of character which marked her a worthy queen and a noble woman.

EFFECT OF JOINT RESOLUTION—HAWAIIAN LAWS CONTRARY TO THE CONSTITUTION—QUESTION OF REPEAL.

The Supreme Court has made the remarkable ruling that the Joint Resolution of Congress, in expressing the intention of Congress to continue in force the municipal laws of Hawaii, "not contrary to the Constitution of the United States," etc., does not imply the intention of Congress to discontinue those laws which are contrary to the Constitution of the United States!

It is urged by the Court by way of argument in support of this remarkable ruling, that the implication of an intention of Congress to discontinue unconstitutional laws of Hawaii, would be in its nature the implication of an intent to repeal those laws without an express repeal thereof; and that repeals of statutes by implication are not to be favored, but are to be avoided if possible. So the Court sets itself to the task of utterly avoiding the effect of the explicit declaration of Congress, at all hazards!

The rule as to repeals by implication is not applicable to the case. That principle has application only as between earlier and later statutes, where there is no express repeal of the later statute. If there is no manifest inconsistency between them, a repeal by implication is not favored. But in all cases where the inconsistency is manifest, and no effect can be given to the language of the later statute, if the earlier statute is allowed to stand, then, in the absence of an express repeal, a repeal of the earlier statute by the later results by implication, to the extent of the inconsistency between them.

To insist that there is no implied repeal of Hawaiian legislation so far as inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States by the language of Congress continuing in force Hawaiian legislation "not contrary to the constitution of the United States," is, in the first place, fallaciously to put the Constitution of the United States in the scale of ordinary legislation, and in the second place, to err in rejecting the principle justly applicable to repeals by implication, and to manifest a determination to avoid and resist at all hazards, any repeal of Hawaiian laws by the Constitution of the United States, no matter how inconsistent therewith it may be!

The Constitution of the United States was evidently justly regarded by Congress, as not being in the plane of ordinary legislation but as being what it is, the Supreme law of the land, which operates of its own vigor to strike with absolute nullity every inferior law, in so far as it is inconsistent therewith. Its operation is not an operation of repeal of an earlier statute by a later, but rather of annulment of all legislation conflicting therewith, as the paramount law.

The Supreme Court, in its earnest desire to protect all Hawaiian legislation against repeal or annulment by the Constitution of the United States, has practically assumed to prevent any such effect of the Constitution, by repealing and annulling the Constitution itself, and refusing to permit it to operate in these islands, so far as inconsistent with Hawaiian legislation!

THE KLUegel ANNIVERSARY.

Mr and Mrs C H Kluegel will celebrate this evening the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at their residence at Punahou. About 500 invitations have been issued and elaborate preparations have been made for the reception and entertainment of the guests. Special cars will leave the corner of Fort and King streets at 7:45 and 7:55 p. m. for Punahou, leaving there again between 10 and 10:30. Refreshments will be served in booths outdoors, the grounds being illuminated with Washington lights and the Government band will help to make the occasion one of the most enjoyable that Honolulu has yet seen.

Mr and Mrs Kluegel are to be congratulated on having here with them at this time all of their immediate family beside many other relatives. Honolulu is Mrs Kluegel's birthplace and Mr. Kluegel has been identified from the start with the O R & L Co., having been chief engineer of the road for many years up to the last few months when he took a similar position with the Hilo Railroad Company.

Smile and the World Will Smile With You.

Sympathizing Friend (to reporter)—"You may say that she was thoroughly unmanned by grief."

Reporter—"Unmanned?" "Yes, she discarded her bloomers out of respect for the deceased."

The P. C. & M. Co. have only twenty Sterlings bicycles left out of the one hundred received on the last Australia. Better place your order before they are all gone.

"Is the soil rich here?" inquired the traveler. "Rich!" exclaimed the farmer, "I should say so. My wife made a mistake and planted gunpowder instead of beet seed, and we've got the finest crop of fire-crackers you ever see."

Do you know that the P. C. & M. Co. nickel-plating cheaper than you can have it done on the Coast?

Stouestreet—"What are Benedict and Scorching howling at each other about?"

Macadam—"Oh, Benedict's got a baby and Scorching a new '99 Sterling bicycle. Each is confiding in the merits of his acquisition to the other."

The Pacific Cycle & Mfg Co. on Fort street have a variety of second hand bicycles for sale. Prices ranging from $10 to $25.

Saw Luna Assassinated.

Maui, June 16.—A Spanish officer, who has been a prisoner in the hands of the rebels, and who was released by Aguinaldo, has come through our lines to Maui. He claims to have been a witness of the assassination of General Luna.

It is said that there is one great fault with our collection of Island Views, and that is that we have so large an assortment of beautiful subjects that it becomes bewildering to the buyer. We are thankful that everyone does not look upon this fault with disfavor.

"THERE ARE NONE SO BLIND AS THOSE WHO WILL NOT SEE."

There are some people who cannot be convinced that white is white and black is black, because they are determined to have their own way about it. Very good. Such people go through life missing the great truths and the greatest happiness as well as comfort.

There are others again who are convinceable. It is to the men of this class that we like to talk about the merits of our clothing.

They are better than nine-tenths of the made-to-measure clothes turned out in this city and the equal of the other tenth.

Alfred Benjamin & Co.'s clothes cost about half the price of made-to-order clothes, and have every desirable attribute of the very best made-to-measure garments, besides embodying many unmatched features strictly their own. That is why we say investigate the merits of the clothes bearing this label before going to a tailor. You risk nothing and stand to win a lot.
